

Rick Sanborn, CLVS C.V. Trial Presentation Specialist – Washington D.C.
Trial Presentation Specialist
Independent Trial Presentation Specialist

Northern Virginia Community College
Washington D.C. Metro Area

Rick has more than 25 years experience in the audiovisual production industry and has specialized in litigation support for the past 22 years. He received the National Court Reporters Association's Certified Legal Video Specialist (CLVS) designation in 1995, and Trial Presentation Certificate in 2011. In 2014 he received inData's TrialDirector 6 Certified Trainer designation.

After 14 years of operation, Rick Sanborn Legal Video merged with Evident, LLC in August 2015. Since then Rick has continued to provide marketing, business and technical assistance to Evident and while making trial presentation his primary focus. He has worked on cases in state courts in Virginia, Maryland, the District of Columbia, Pennsylvania, North Carolina and California, and in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

Rick has recorded thousands of videotaped depositions in more than a dozen countries, and audio taped hundreds of proceedings including numerous U.S. Supreme Court arguments (some for worldwide broadcast) and U.S. Senate hearings before the Foreign Relations, Appropriations, Armed Services, Energy and Natural Resources, Judiciary, and Health, Education, Labor and Pensions committees.

Witnesses he's videotaped include two former White House chiefs of staff; a former Senate majority leader; sitting members of Congress; a former White House counsel; a former national security adviser; a former prime minister; a sitting finance minister; numerous Fortune 500 company executives; and an Academy Award-winning director.

Experience

Trial Presentation Specialist

Company Name Independent Trial Presentation Specialist

Dates Employed Aug 2015 – Present

Employment Duration 2 yrs 7 months

Location Washington, DC/Nationwide

After 20 years operating one of Washington DC's most highly regarded deposition videography firms, Rick has shifted his primary focus to trial presentation. He has trained with industry leaders in the preparation of exhibit databases, video clips, graphics and other demonstrative exhibits; and in tailoring audiovisual and IT systems to specific trial venues. In 2014 Rick received his InData TrialDirector 6 Certified Trainer certification.

Rick brings to the table more than 30 years of communication experience, employing skills first developed as an award-winning writer, editor and broadcaster for U.S. Army Public Affairs. He's been effectively employing leading-edge desktop video, publishing, presentation and design tools since their inception. Over the years Rick has enhanced his proficiency through seminars and coursework such as Dr. Edward Tufte's Presenting Data and Information.

Among the attributes he's demonstrated as a litigation support professional are the ability to collaborate effectively with attorneys to ensure work product achieves litigation objectives; to creatively fashion both messaging and technology solutions to communications challenges; to maintain composure in high-profile and highly charged arenas; and to systematically troubleshoot technical issues when they arise.

As a trial presentation specialist and legal videographer Rick routinely uses inData TrialDirector, inData TimeCoder Pro, Microsoft Office, Adobe Creative Suite and TMPGEnc Video Mastering Works.

Since embarking in this field Rick has brought his ever-growing skill set to war rooms and courtrooms for cases in state courts in Virginia, Maryland, the District of Columbia, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, South Carolina and California, and in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

It's extremely rare that within minutes of meeting someone you're so impressed that you begin strategizing how to forge a long-term business alliance with him. But when Rick Sanborn met David Bayles in early 2014 that was exactly the thought process the meeting triggered. After 14 years as the sole proprietor of Rick Sanborn Legal Video, one of Washington, DC's most highly regarded deposition videography firms, Rick knew he had stumbled upon a kindred spirit whose technical savvy was exceeded only by his dedication to the greatest possible customer experience.

In the ensuing months, Rick turned to Dave's firm Evident to cover an ever growing proportion of his deposition videography assignments and was consistently rewarded with praise for the videographers Dave was fielding and an outstanding level of customer support. Within six months Rick had proposed a partnership that culminated in the August 2015 merger between RSLV and Evident.

While ceding day-to-day operational duties to Dave and his wife Candace, Rick continues to be a business and technical resource to Evident, and to serve as an enthusiastic ambassador for the company.

Among the many strengths the Evident team brings are:

- CLVS owned with more than a quarter century combined experience in the legal video field
- Full-time scheduling and production support
- An exclusive videographer incentive program ensuring on-time arrivals and timely delivery
- Full service including digital delivery, streaming and high-definition picture-in-picture capability
- Secure, on-line storage to provide near instantaneous access should replacement of media be required

Evident continues to broaden its coverage area, which now includes Washington, DC, and surrounding areas, Baltimore, Richmond and Atlanta.

Evident's overarching goal is building long-term business relationships based on delivering high-quality products and conscientious service.
